A SCAR OF BELONGING
fragments of fashion by Gillis Gorll

edited by Otto von Busch

Gillis Gorll (1901-1975), left a collection of short reflections and aphorisms at his death. A tailor, seeking God in clothing, had found the soul of fashion. Writing with a wounded sincerity, his texts bear witness of the religious depths of attire. With his concept of facon, or weak fashion, a whole new chapter has opened in our understanding of the spirituality in dress and fashion. Finally emerging from the shadows of time, Gillis Gorll was nothing less than a fashion mystic.
