

How to Network With People

Are you interested in building an extensive network of people within your circle of influence to promote yourself and/or your business? This book gives a brief, but informative overview of how to get started building a personal network from the ground up. Its primary focus is on teaching introductory techniques in face-to-face and online networking to the inexperienced business networker. Among the questions answered are:

- Why should you network?
- What business benefits can you expect from effective networking?
- Why should you bother with face-to-face networking?
- What are some venues that you can attend to increase my network?
- How does online networking work?
- How do you use social media outlets to grow my network?

And much more!

If you want to be a successful entrepreneur, a better salesperson, a better businessperson, or if you simply want opportunities to open up to you, building a personal network is essential! Start with How to Network With People, and watch your circle grow.
