

The Warrior Princess 1: Sikh Women in Battle (v. 1)

The stories in this book are set in 18th Century Punjab - The Land Of The Five Rivers. They are about ordinary Sikh women living in extraordinary times. About people like you and me who struggled for survival. This book is suitable for all ages, races, colours, nationalities and religions. It would be ideal for school children to give them a unique insight into the life of Sikh Warriors. Although this book will probably not take more than about an hour to read it has taken over four years to complete. The inspiration came from a Punjabi book by Karam Singh called Ardashak Singhian. It is full of stories of brave Sikh women from the last three centuries. I was so inspired to read of brave sikh women that I immediately re-wrote the stories in a modern inspiring and dramatic way - the way I would have wanted to read them. I had to add some fictional characters and create some new scenes to bring out the character of the hero. I wrote the Fighting Spirit poem when I read about the way small groups of Sikh soldiers would outwit a whole army of enemy soldiers in order to save the kidnapped women. The Sikhs were the Robin Hoods of their day - the ones innocent villagers would look to for support. I have taught children and teenagers for over a decade and know how difficult it is to find resources that they find interesting. So I wrote this book in simple English aimed at children to young teenagers. However, I have found University students, parents and non-Sikhs all reading this book with fascination. I know you will enjoy it to, so If you like it tell your friends, If you dont then tell me!
